DEATH OF MR. JOSEPH H. HERRON.-Mr. Joseph H. Herron, whose critical illness was reported in Saturday's STAR, died about noon yesterday at his home, 626 E street southwest. The funeral will take place to-morrow, at two o'clock, from his late residence. Mr. Herron, who was fifty-seven years of age, had resided here since the war, and was held in highesteem by his neighbors in South Washington. He leaves one son, Mr. J. Whit. Herron, of THE EVENING STAR, and two daughters, who have the sincere sympathy of a wide circle of friends in their double bereavement, the death of their father having followed only a few months after that of their mother.

THE SECOND THOMAS CONCERT.-The audience at Congregational church Saturday night to hear the second Thomas concert was larger than that of the previous evening, owing to the general desire to hear Mrs. Annie Louise Powell. The orchestral numbers were not, on the whole, as attractive as those on Friday evening's program, though they were, of course, of a high order, and were rendered with power and great beauty of execution. The appearance of Mrs. Powell for her first number, Gluck's "Che Faro," was the signal for a generous round of applause. The warmth and kindliness of this reception did not wholly subdue the evident nervousness of the lady, and she began the pretty but difficult aria without ob-taining sufficient control of her voice to do her powers full justice. She sang, however, with much sweetness of expression, and was recalled second number, Coombs' spirited and beautiful 'Bedouin's Love Song," Mrs. Powell brought greater composure and rendered it accordingly with good effect. In answer to long-continued applause she reappeared and gave "Home, Sweet Home."

A Novelty.-The work upon the dredge at the upper ship yard here approaches completion. This machine is a noveity, combining, it is claimed, the merits and capacity of both the kinds of dredges now used at the improvements in front of Washington. The dredging is done by a chain of immense scoops, arranged somewhat after the fashion of mill elevators. These pass down to the river bottom with great force.
Their lips or edges are of steel, and after cutting the solid earth at the river's bottom they ascend and deliver their loads into small iron cars that run it off on a tramway any distance that may be desired. It is claimed that the edge of the dredge, which is adze shape, will cut through the water-logged timbers that so often lie in the path of a dredging machine. The work will be completed before next spring.

The groom took no notice of them. They determined, however, to bring him out, and began firing through the window of the bridal chamber. The bride screamed, and then Wilkinson rushed to the window and fired a load of buckshot into the crowd. One of the party, Thomas Mean, fell, desperately ed in the head. Others were slightly wounded. > Source of the Mississippi. LAKE GLAZIER NOW CLAIMED AS THE SOURCE OF THE GREAT RIVER. From the Philadelphia Times. The newly-found source of the Mississippi is a sparkling little gem of a lake situated above and beyond Lake Itasca. It nestles among the pines of an unfrequented and wild region of Minnesota, many miles from the nearest white settlement and just on the dividing ridge which forms the great watershed of North America. Within a few miles of it can be found lakes and streams whose waters are tributary to the Red river of the north and the Yellowstone, thus reaching the sea thousands of miles from the mouth of the mighty Mississippi, which flows in a trickling brook from Lake Glazier. This lake, discovered to be the true source of the greatest river of North America by Capt. Willard Glaand a half in greatest diameter and would be nearly round in shape but for a single promontory, whose rocky shores give it in outline the shape of a heart. The waters of the lake are exceedingly clear and pure, coming from springs, some being at the bottom, but the three most prominent rise a few miles back in low, wet land and flow into the lake in little rills. On the very point of the promontory is a spring while exploring the shores of the new lake. So lonely is the region around the lake that for fourteen days not even a redskin was seen, and wearied by the hardships of this rough country, yet with a feeling of having added something to geographical knowledge, Capt. Glazier and his party were glad to come into contact again with their fellow-creatures.
